

Special Joint Service with the Dallas Sai Center, 11/12

Every year, the Dallas Sai Center observes a 24-hour global Prayers for Peace. They come together and invite other local religious groups to lead bhajans (devotional singing) in their own way. Community UU Church will join them at our regular time on November 12th, 10:30 am, and at 11:00 we will lead their members in 30 minutes of singing our favorite hymns. After the singing, they have invited us to stay for a delicious vegetarian lunch.

Things to know:

- On November 12, come any time before 11:00 am to join in singing hymns together. If you come at 10:30 you can get a flavor of what they do. You might even get to hear their children leading some songs, which are mostly call-and-response and easy to follow.
- Sai Center members remove their shoes before entering. They don't require that of us, but it's nice to be prepared to remove your shoes.
- Women sit on the left side of the sanctuary (south and west) and men sit on the right side (east). They'll have chairs out, and some people sit on the floor.
- The lunch is always delicious homemade, vegetarian Indian food. Please plan to stay if you can.

The service will be streamed live. Go to dallas.live.sairegion10.org to watch from home.
